

LUXE DINING

SINGAPORE TATLER'S BEST RESTAURANTS

Dear readers,

Christmas is around the corner, and if there is a time to feast, it would be now, especially when hotels do so well to tempt us with new menus. While prices are a little higher this time of the year, hotels are mindful that spending has not returned to the pre-recession days, so quality is assured as champagne brunches, buffets and even a post- APEC menu help usher in the new year with gusto and grace.

Checkers Brasserie

Checkers Brasserie is better known for its international buffet spread but regulars now have something new to tantalise their palates on Christmas Eve. Celebrate the festive season by going Japanese because a chef from the renowned Nogawa restaurant has joined the hotel 's team of chefs. Diners should expect only the freshest sashimi, kaiseki and foie gras chawanmushi. The Japanese-inspired Christmas Eve buffet is priced at $110(lunch) and $130(dinner) for free-flow of wine and one glass of champagne.

Raffles Hotel

From 27 to 31 Jan 2010, Raffles Hotel will present a series of lavish wine dinners, elaborate champagne brunches and exquisite tasting lunches, which are part of the 15th Raffles Hotel Food, Wine and Arts Experience. The meals will be presented by leading chefs from France (Michelin three-star Chef Marc Haeberlin), Japan (Michelin three-star Chef Shuzo Kishida) and Hong Kong (Michelin two-star Chef Alvin Leung).

Wine pairings for the event will be equally spectacular. Raffles Hotel's Wine Director Stephane Soret comes highly experienced and diners can expect Old World classics from Chateau Leoville Las Cases in Saint Julien, Bordeaux and Le Petite Cheval from Premier Grand Cru Classe. New World offerings will include Argentinian wine Clos de los Siete.

that is as tender as it is flavourful are just some of the highlights here. Where most buffet spreads impress with a smorgasbord of culinary favourites that feature an equal number of hits and misses, quality is of the essence here. Air-flown gourmet cheese, fresh sashimi, and seafood are served with an unlimited flow of Moët & Chandon champagne, possibly making the Ritz-Carlton Champagne brunch ($148 per person) the king of all brunches in Singapore.

experiences right here at Prego. The four-course lunch or dinner set, which is prepared by Chef Otto Weibel, includes dishes such as the lobster poached with pickled watermelon, soto ayam scallop mousse, braised beef with edamame puree and the cheng teng terrine pina colada ice parfait coconut streusel. Priced at $120 per set menu, the portions are small, probably to keep world leaders alert and awake during discussions, but some stand out more than others—namely the beef and dessert.
